Dear Webelos, Leaders, and Parents

p1

This year, your son will be making a decision that will impact his Scouting career: The choice of which Boy Scout Troop he will join. We are providing this guide to help you assist your son as he makes this important decision. It includes brief answers for many of the questions you and your son might want to ask.

The choice of a Troop is a personal decision. All members of a den need not join the same Troop. Nor, is there a “designated” Troop that your boys must join, although some packs have a close affiliation with a brother-Troop. Most Troops welcome any new Scouts that would like to join them.

As a part of his Arrow of Light requirement as a Webelos Scout, your son must visit at least one Boy Scout Troop and complete an application to join a Troop. We recommend he visit several Troops, so he can see how different Troops do things. If possible, you and your son should attend an overnight campout as a guest of a Troop. Contact the Troop(s) you are interested in to set up a visit and go with your son to help him assess the Troop. Bayshore District Troops’ Webelos contact persons are included in this guide.

During your visit, there are things to ask and observe. There is no “right” answer to these questions, but you want a Troop you and your son will feel comfortable with. Don’t be afraid to ask about the Troop. They will be proud to tell you about themselves.

Good luck, and contact the district if you have any questions.

Your in Scouting,

Bayshore District Committee

Frequently Asked Questions:

p2

How many registered Scouts and Leaders are in the Troop?

While Troops will vary in size, there should be a cadre of Leadership appropriate to the number of boys in the Troop. Do the boys tend to stick with the program year to year?

What is the age range of the Scouts? Is the Troop currently able to hold the interests of the older as well as the younger scouts? Do they offer or plan to offer any “High Adventure” Scouting?

Younger Scouts traditionally work on their Rank Requirements so they can advance through the Tenderfoot, Second Class, and First Class Ranks in their first year in Scouting. Much of their attention in meetings and on campouts is devoted to their basic Scout skills for these requirements.

As the Scouts get into their teens, it is necessary to challenge them in order to hold their interests. Scouting has established “High Adventure” programs for Scouts who are 13 years or older. They may begin high level canoeing, rock climbing, or sailing. Troops may travel to Philmont Scout Ranch for rugged mountain backpacking or to a national or international jamboree or other high adventure sites.

Who are the Scout Leaders in the Troop? Are the Scout Master, Assistant Scout Master and Committee Chairman trained? What training have they attended?

To be considered trained, Leaders must take training courses. They may then wear a “Trained” patch on their sleeves. Boy Scout Leader training offered in our Council includes:

- Fast Start (Instructional Videotapes)
- Scoutmaster Fundamentals: (12 hr. course + campout)
- Woodbadge (highest level of Scout Leader Training)

p3

Is the Troop “boy run”? What is their feeling about boy leadership?

In Boy Scouting, most troops aim to train their boys for leadership. Each Troop has a Senior Patrol Leader, elected by all of the boys in the Troop, who with his Assistant Senior Patrol Leader takes the helm for leadership within the Troop. The Troop will also be organized into Patrols, units of 5 to 8 Scouts who function together, similar to a Cub Den. They will have an elected Patrol Leader and Assistant Patrol Leader. In a young Troop, the boys will obviously need more adult assistance in running meetings, etc., but in an established Troop with older Scouts, you should see evidence of “boys leading boys”.

What is their activity program like?

Ask to see a copy of their yearly program schedule. You’ll want to see how often they campout. Do they camp in the winter? Do they participate in the District/Council activities? Do they offer special activities meetings? Do they invite speakers on certain topics?

What is a “typical” meeting like?

Is it “boy run”? Is it upbeat? Are the boys kept busy? Is it fun? Do they show respect to the flag ceremony, to the program, to the adults, and to each other? Is good discipline evident within the program?

What are their uniform requirements?

Some Troops require full uniform for all meetings and for District or Council sponsored campouts. Others require only the uniform shirt. Others have designated uniform meeting days. Others wear the activity (red polo) shirt. You will probably want to choose a troop that feels the same about the uniform as you and your son do.

Does the Troop attend Summer Camp?

What percentage of the Troop attended last year? Where do they go? Do they always go to the same Camp? How many Leaders attend camp with the Scouts? Summer camp offers a tremendous opportunity for Scouts to experience the fun and excitement of camping while affording the chance to achieve rank advancements and merit badges. Our Council operates Camp Strake, in Huntsville Texas, but it is not necessary that the Troops attend this camp. Some Troops will choose different camps to add a variety to their summer time activities.

How do they utilize the Advancement & Merit Badge Program?

Some Troops use the Advancement and Merit Badge Program as the cornerstone of their program. Their campouts and meetings center on helping boys advance within the format outlined by the Boy Scouts of America. Some focus meetings on merit badge work. Other Troops may feel that the advancements and merit badges are secondary and plan activities independently of them. Their Scouts earn all merit badges on their own. Clearly, either system can function well, as boys can work with either one to advance all the way to Eagle Scout.

What can a parent expect in terms of fees?

Most Troops have an annual fee, which covers membership and basic materials, including badges and awards. It usually does not include uniform and camping fees, meals, travel, or other special activity costs. You'll want to know what additional fees will likely be charged during the course of the year.

p5

Observe how the boys interact. How do they treat visitors?

You'll want to join a Troop where your son feels comfortable. Does your son need a group where he already knows some of the boys? If he does not know other boys initially, do they seem like a group that will treat a newcomer well?

What can I do to help?

Troops require lots of adult support. There are many different levels of involvement in a Troop, from leadership roles, to serving on the Troop Committee, to helping with campouts, to driving to events, etc. We hope you can get involved with your son as he continues on in Scouting. It's been our experience that successful Scouts have parents who can make time to be involved.

Obviously, there are many other questions you may wish to ask of a Troop relative to your son's interests or goals in Scouting. We hope this information gives you a starting point to help you assess the Troops you visit. Whichever Troop you and your son choose, remember that he has to feel happy with his decision so that he enjoys going to the meetings, and is encouraged to advance.

Good Luck!
